

ashley@ivycoach.com

\(212\) 600-0312600-0312)

CLICK HERE FOR A FREE CONSULTATION >

2022 Ivy League Admissions Statistics

Ivy League Colleges	Overall Accept. Rate	Regular Decision Accept. Rate	Regular Decision Apps Accepted	Regular Decision Apps Received	Early Decision / Action Accept. Rate	% of Class Filled by Early Apps	Early Decision / Action Apps Rcvd	Early Decision / Action Apps Accepted	Expected Number of Students to Enroll	Total Apps Received	Total Apps Accepted
Brown	7.2%	5.7%	1,829	31,936	21.0%	44.3%	3,502	737	1,665	35,438	2,566
Columbia	5.5%	4.3%	1,564	36,118	15.9%	46.8%	4,085	650	1,390	40,203	2,214
Cornell	10.3%	8.3%	3,755	45,009	24.3%	46.8%	6,319	1,533	3,275	51,328	5,288
Dartmouth	8.7%	6.9%	1,360	19,763	24.9%	49.1%	2,270	565	1,150	22,033	1,925
Harvard	4.6%	2.8%	998	36,119	14.5%	n/a*	6,630	964	1,665	42,749	1,962
Penn	8.4%	6.5%	2,419	37,408	18.5%	53.7%	7,074	1,312	2,445	44,482	3,731
Princeton	5.5%	3.8%	1,142	29,968	14.8%	n/a*	5,402	779	1,296	35,370	1,941
Yale	6.3%	4.7%	1,387	29,573	14.7%	n/a*	5,733	842	1,782	35,306	2,229

* n/a = not applicable since an Early Action policy was in place

The graph below of the 2022 Ivy League admissions statistics shows a comparison between the Early Decision / Early Action acceptance rates and the Regular Decision acceptance rates:

Brown University

It was a record-breaking Early Decision cycle for Brown University this fall. In all, 3,502 students made binding commitments to attend the Providence, Rhode Island-based school in the hope of being named members of the Brown Class of 2022. That figured shattered the same figure for Brown's Class of 2021, when 3,186 students applied Early Decision (that's around 10% more applicants this year). Of this year's 3,502 Early Decision applicants to the university, 738 earned admission. This marks a and Massachusetts, respectively, while the most represented countries outside the United States are China, the UK, and mitted students are in the top 10% of their high school classes. 49% identify as financial aid. Admitted students hail from 1,685 high schools, 48 states (California, d Texas are the most represented), as well as 76 nations around our world (China, the most represented). While intended majors can surely change once students for Brown's admitted students to the Class of 2022 are: engineering, computer nistry and molecular biology, economics, BEO (business, entrepreneurship and organizations), international relations, neuroscience, and English.

ABC Nightline - Ivy League Admi...

Read more about the Brown Early Decision and Brown Regular Decision pools for the Class of 2022.

Columbia University

In the Early Decision round at Columbia University, 4,085 students agreed to matriculate if admitted to the Columbia Class of 2022. The figure is one shy of the same figure for last year's Early Decision pool at the university — when 4,086 students submitted binding applications in an all-time record for the school. Falling one short of the school's all-time record, a record set just last year, is tough! The figure for the Class of 2021 marked a spike of 16% from just the year before, though, so this year's Early Decision pool to Columbia was a strong cycle even if it wasn't a record-setting cycle. But a record would shatter in the admissions office at Columbia this year so do read on.

You see, in the Regular Decision round, 36,118 students submitted applications. Of these students, 1,564 applicants got in. The Regular Decision acceptance rate at Columbia for the Class of 2022 thus stands at 4.3%. Overall, a record-setting 40,203 students applied to the university between Early Decision and Regular Decision, the largest applicant pool in the school's

College Admissions Strategies

r. So there's that record! Of these applicants, 2,214 earned admission, marking an re stood at 5.8% last year, 6% two years ago, and 6.1% three years ago. Notice a Columbia University Class of 2022. Columbia traditionally releases more insights into of admits, later on (the school's early data is always quite vague) so we'll be sure to n that time comes. Do stay tuned.

Cornell University Newsletter Sign Up

It was a banner Early Decision cycle for Cornell University's Class of 2022. For the third year in a row, the school is able to boast that a record number of students submitted binding applications to the university. Now that's something! So too is the fact that the school's Early Decision pool has climbed by a margin of 83% over just this past decade! 83%! In all, for the Class of 2022, 6,319 students applied Early Decision to the Ithaca, New York-based institution. Of these applicants, 1,533 earned admission. This marks an Early Decision acceptance rate of 24.3%. The same figure stood at 25.8% last year and 27.4% two years ago. In the Regular Decision round, 45,009 students applied to the university. Of these students, 3,755 students earned admission. This marks a Regular Decision acceptance rate of 8.3%. And with 51,328 total applications between Early Decision and Regular Decision, the overall admit rate thus stands at 10.3%, down from 12.5% last year, 14.1% two years ago, and 15.1% three years ago. There's that trend again! Whoop, whoop.

Highlights of Cornell University's Class of 2022

Of the Early Decision admits to the Cornell University Class of 2022, 14.3% hail from outside of the United States. Indeed international applications were up 19% at Cornell compared to last year. So when we forecasted that America's highly selective universities would continue to attract international applicants in spades in spite of fears sweeping across our nation each's famously accurate crystal ball happened to be right...as it so often is. Anyhow, female (compared to 50.1% last year) while 47% identify as male. Students of color applicants, a figure that's also up from last year's 35%. But when some things go up, . The percentage of recruited athletes among this year's admitted ED students to 4% last year). Legacy students are also down this year, comprising 22.1% of ED s of 2021. Now that's a trend we like to see!

Of the total pool, 55% of admitted students self-identify as underrepresented minorities. Underrepresented minorities, to be clear, is a distinct categorization from students of color. As an example, Asian American students are students of color but they do not qualify as underrepresented minority applicants. Of admitted students, 700 will be the first in their families to attend college, a highly coveted group among all highly selective universities in America. Admitted students hail from all 50 states in our union (in addition to Washington, D.C., Guam, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and American Samoa) as well as from 93 countries (Canada, China, India, South Korea, Singapore, and the UK are the most represented countries — just like last year). Additionally, 60 students' admission was deferred until January 2019. These students are part of the First-Year Spring Admission Program.

DURING THE 2021 EARLY ADMISSIONS CYCLE
Read more about the Cornell Class of 2022 Early Decision and Cornell Class of 2022 Regular Decision pools if you just can't get enough. And, yes, we had Deneche Mode in our heads too when we wrote that bit as you might imagine.

Dartmouth College

commitments to attend the College on the Hill if admitted this Early Decision cycle (a 13.5% jump from last year's pool of 1,000 admissions). In all, 565 students applied in during the Early round of the Class of 2022. This marks an Early Decision admit rate for the Class of 2022, the lowest Early Decision admit rate since 2010. Last year's Early Decision admit rate stood at 27.8%. Of these students, 1,360 earned admission. The Regular Decision admit rate for the school's Early Decision admit rate for the Class of 2022 stands at 24.9%. So is that a win or a loss? Well, it's a win for sure! It's a matter of 24.9% vs. 6.9%. There is a huge advantage in applying to Dartmouth — including Dartmouth — in the Early round. And with 22,033 total applications between Early Decision and Regular Decision, the school's overall acceptance rate for the Class of 2022 stands at 8.7%, an all-time low for Dartmouth. This same figure stood at 10.4% for the Class of 2021 and 10.5% for the Class of 2020.

Highlights of Dartmouth College's Class of 2022
33% of students admitted Early Decision to Dartmouth's Class of 2022 are students of color. 13% are first generation students, students who will be the first in their families to attend college. 16% are legacy students. 95% of students are anticipated to graduate in the top 10% of their high school classes. 26 students were admitted through QuestBridge, representing the school's commitment to helping students from low-income families (though it's important to note the school admits many more students from low income families — these are just the students they admit through QuestBridge).

admits many more students from low-income families — these are just the students they admit through QuestBridge!). Indeed 52% of students were offered financial aid with their acceptances and 12% are Pell Grant-eligible, further marking Dartmouth's commitment to educating students from low-income families. Early Decision admits hail from 44 states in our union (along with Puerto Rico and Washington, D.C). The most represented state is...wait for it...California. International admits hail from 23 nations with Canada, Brazil, Kenya, the UK, and China being the most-represented.

Of admits between Early Decision and Regular Decision, 15% will be the first in their families to attend college. 11% are citizens of foreign nations. 9% are legacy students. Half of U.S. citizens and permanent residents admitted to the College on the Hill are students of color and 59% attend public or charter schools (take that private schools — hey we've got to add statistics!). Over 60% of admits applied for financial aid, which is need-based. 77% during the Early Decision round as QuestBridge admits. Admits to Dartmouth's Class of 2022 hail from 13 original colonies (in addition to Washington, D.C., American Samoa, and Alaska). California, New York, Massachusetts, Florida, and Texas are the most represented states. Admits also represent 65 nations around our globe. China, India, the UK, and South Korea are the most-represented countries among admitted students.

Business Insider

Read more about the Dartmouth's Early Decision and Regular Decision pools for the Class of 2022.

Harvard College

In the Single Choice Early Action round, 6,630 students applied to Harvard in the hope of earning admission to its Class of 2022. Of these students, 964 got in. This marks a SCEA admit rate of 14.5%. Last year, for the Class of 2021, 6,443 students applied SCEA to Harvard and 938 got in. With increased applications and increased acceptances, Harvard's SCEA admit rate thus held steady year-to-year (and tied the lowest admit rate since SCEA was reinstated in 2011 at the university).

In the Regular Decision round, 36,119 students applied to Harvard's Class of 2022. Of these students, 998 earned admission. This marks a Regular Decision acceptance rate of a mere 2.8%. Overall, 42,749 students applied between Single Choice Early Action and Regular Decision to Harvard's Class of 2022. A total of 1,962 earned admission, marking an overall admit rate of 4.6%, the lowest in the school's history. To put this figure in perspective, this same figure stood at 5.2% for the Classes of 2021 and 2020 and 5.3% for the Class of 2019. There's that trend again! Hey, it's not exactly as hard to spot as finding Waldo in "Where's Waldo?" now is it?

Highlights of Harvard College's Class of 2022

Business Insider - Ivy League A...

Of admits to Harvard's Class of 2022, 13.9% identify as African American, 9.8% identify as Asian American, 2.2% identify as Hispanic / Latinx, and 2.2% identify as Native Hawaiian. 24.2% of SCEA admits are Asian Americans, a figure that grew from 22.2% last year. Harvard is of course defending itself against allegations that the school discriminates against Asian Americans in the Students For Fair Admissions v. Harvard University case that is front and center in the news. This year, this figure climbed to 24.2%. Coincidence? We think not. Women comprise 47% of this year's SCEA admits, up from 45% last year, while men comprise 53% of SCEA admits to Harvard's Class of 2022 (a figure flipped for the overall class!). Nearly 58% of admits applied for need-based financial aid and 13% requested application fee waivers. 10.2% of SCEA admits hail from outside the United States.

Of the full pool of admitted students to Harvard's Class of 2022 (between the Single Choice Early Action and Regular Decision rounds), women outnumber men by a margin of 50.1% to 49.9%. This marks the first time in a decade at Harvard in which women outnumber men in the incoming class — cheers to that! First generation students comprise 17.3% of admits to the first-year class (up from 15.1% for the Class of 2021). Cheers to that, too! An all-time record 15.5% of admitted students in the overall pool are African American. 12.2% of admits are Latino (up from 11.6% for the Class of 2021). Native American admits are up too this year albeit only by a bit — to 2% from 1.9%. And 22.7% of admits are Asian American, a figure that stood at 22.2% just last year. Can we get a whoot, whoot?

Read more about the Harvard Class of 2022 Early Action and Harvard Class of 2022 Regular Decision pools.

Princeton University

In the Single Choice Early Action round, 5,402 students applied to Princeton University in the hope of earning admission to the school's Class of 2022. Of these 5,402 students, 799 earned admission. By our long division, this marks a 14.8% SCEA admit rate. Princeton released a 14.7% admit rate but it's 14.79% and...well, we value accuracy in lowest SCEA admission rate in the school's history (the same figure stood at 15.4% in round, 29,968 students applied to Princeton. Of these students, 1,142 earned admission at a rate of 3.8%. Overall, Princeton received 35,370 applications to its Class of 2022. 1,941 students were admitted to Princeton's Class of 2022 thus stands at 5.5%. This figure compares to 6.1% for the Class of 2020, and 7% for the Class of 2019. Ding, ding. There it is again!

Jayson Weingarten of Ivy Coac...

Princeton University Class of 2022

Of the admitted students drawn from the largest Single Choice Early Action pool in Princeton's history, 11% are international, hailing from 48 nations. Domestic admits hail from 44 of the 50 states in our union and of these domestic students, 44% have been classified as "coming from diverse backgrounds." 14% of SCEA admits will be the first in their families to attend college (go Princeton!), while 17% are on the other end of the spectrum — the children or stepchildren of Princeton alumni. And, yes, that's how Princeton defines legacy applicants. 56% of admitted students hail from public or charter schools (as opposed to private schools). 49 SCEA admits were admitted through QuestBridge, demonstrating part of Princeton's commitment to educating students from low-income families. 21% of admits expressed intentions of pursuing a bachelor's degree in engineering and of these students, 44% of them are women (let's see that number hit 50% or more real soon!).

Of the overall applicant pool (the Single Choice Early Action pool plus the Regular Decision pool), 50% had SAT scores of 1400 or higher (17,692 students). A little over 40% of admitted applicants had perfect high school GPAs (14,273 students). Princeton fell short of admitting students from all 50 states to its Class of 2022. Rather, admits hail from 48 states in addition to Washington, D.C., Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Which states are most represented, you ask? New Jersey (home of the Tigers), California, and New York. International admits hail from 77 countries, like Estonia, Bahrain, Mauritius, Rwanda, and Serbia. 17% of admits will be the first in their families to attend college. 11.2% of admits are legacy students. 11.6% are recruited athletes. 65.5% of admits hail from public schools. 24.8% expressed intentions of receiving an undergraduate degree.

Of the admitted students, 48.3% are women — so the school got close to the 50% mark among total

Ivy Coach's Brian Taylor on New...

Princeton's Single Choice Early Action and Princeton Regular Decision rounds at this year for the school's

University of Pennsylvania

A record-breaking 7,074 students applied Early Decision to the University of Pennsylvania in the hope of earning admission to its Class of 2022. Applications were up by a margin of 15% from last year's Early Decision pool of 6,147 students. Of the students who applied ED to UPenn's Class of 2022, 1,312 ultimately earned admission. This marks an Early Decision acceptance rate for the UPenn Class of 2022 of 18.5%, a new record. To put this number in perspective, this same figure stood at 22% for the Class of 2021, 23.2% for the Class of 2020, and 23.9% for the Class of 2019. There's that trend again. Hiya Waldo!

In the Regular Decision round at UPenn, 37,408 students applied. Of these students, 2,419 got in. This marks a Regular Decision admit rate for the school of 6.5%. Combining the Early Decision and Regular Decision pools, the total application figure for the UPenn Class of 2022 stands at 44,482. In all, 3,731 of these students earned admission. The overall acceptance rate for the university this year stands at 8.4%. This figure compares to 9.2% for the Class of 2021, 9.4% for the Class of 2020, and 9.9% for the Class of 2019. There you are again, Waldo. You're literally everywhere. But seriously, what a year it was for the University of Pennsylvania's admissions office!

Highlights of University of Pennsylvania's Class of 2022

Of Early Decision admits to the UPenn Class of 2022, 25% are the sons, daughters, and/or grandchildren of University of

Jayson Weingarten Ivy Coach on "Newsy" Discussing Student Loans

4.7%. In total (between SCEA and RD), 35,306 students applied to Yale this year and 2,229 earned admission. The overall Brian Taylor of Ivy Coach on "NewsNation" discussing college enrollment numbers.

Ivy Coach on Asian American Life

Ivy Coach on WGN America

